"Its" or "it's"? Belonging or a contraction

Learner workbook

Choose "its" for belonging and "it's" for "it is" or "it has" by identifying the job the words do.

Understand the distinction

"Its" is the possessive form of the personal pronoun "it". It goes before a noun to show belonging or a connection: 'The robot raised its arm.' Here "its arm" means "the robot's arm". Personal-pronoun forms such as "his", "hers", "ours", and "its" already express possession; standard English writes them without an apostrophe. A noun such as "robot" forms its possessive differently: "the robot's arm".

"It's" is a contraction: two words shortened into one. The apostrophe marks omitted letters. 'It's ready' means 'It is ready'; 'It's finished the job' means 'It has finished the job.' In the second example, "has" helps form the present perfect. The spelling "it's" does not itself express possession, even though an apostrophe can mark possession in a noun such as "robot's".

Check the meaning by expanding "it's" to "it is" or "it has" in the complete sentence. If one expansion fits, use "it's". If neither fits and the word means belonging to or connected with it, use "its": 'The museum changed its opening hours.' Sound cannot settle the choice because "its" and "it's" sound alike. Some contractions are ambiguous without context: 'It's finished' can mean "it is finished" or "it has finished". The full sentence helps you choose the meaning.

Compare the patterns

"ITS": BELONGING OR CONNECTION

The robot raised its arm.

"Its arm" means "the robot's arm". "Its" is already the possessive personal-pronoun form, like "his"; it needs no apostrophe.

"IT'S": "IT IS"

It's ready for the next task.

Expand the contraction: "It is ready for the next task". The apostrophe marks the missing letter in "is".

"IT'S": "IT HAS"

It's finished the job.

Expand the contraction: "It has finished the job". "Has" is the helping verb in the present perfect; the apostrophe marks omitted letters.

Read each example and notice how its form changes the meaning. Use these distinctions to choose your answers on the following pages.

Check your understanding

Circle one answer for each question. There is one correct choice among the options shown. Check the answer key after choosing.

1. The arm belongs to the robot. Complete: 'The robot moved ___ arm.'

A. it's

B. its

C. its'

2. Replace 'It is' with its contraction: 'It is ready for testing.'

A. It's ready for testing.

B. Its ready for testing.

C. Its' ready for testing.

3. What does "it's" mean in 'It's completed three tasks today'?

A. belonging to it

B. it is

C. it has

Choose the best response

Choose the response that fits the situation. Check both its meaning and its grammar.

4. A machine has finished its work, and a light belonging to the machine is green. Choose the sentence with both forms correct.

A. Its finished the job, and it's light is green.

B. It's finished the job, and its light is green.

C. It's finished the job, and it's light is green.

Review your choices

Use the answer explanations on the next page. If you chose a different answer, find the detail that makes it unsuitable and try the question again.

Answers and explanation

1. B. its

"Its arm" means "the robot's arm". Like "his", "its" is already a possessive form and takes no apostrophe.

2. A. It's ready for testing.

"It's" contracts "it is". The apostrophe marks the omitted letter; this sentence describes the robot's state.

3. C. it has

"It has completed three tasks today" is the full sentence. "Has" is the helping verb in the present perfect, and "it's" shortens "it has".

4. B. It's finished the job, and its light is green.

"It's finished" expands to "it has finished". "Its light" identifies the light belonging to the machine; that possessive form takes no apostrophe.

You are my patient English practice tutor. Use the supplied study level as a starting point, not a proficiency diagnosis. Keep explanations brief and use familiar words. Define any necessary grammar term. Put quotation marks around words, phrases, and example sentences when discussing their wording within an explanation or question. Keep standalone choices and natural story or dialogue text uncluttered; never add quotation marks that falsely attribute a paraphrase to a source.

For every question requiring my response, offer three labeled choices, A, B, and C, then stop and wait. Do not ask for typed sentences, personal details, or an open-ended answer. Give one question at a time. Keep the answer and explanation hidden until I choose. Before showing a scored question, check that exactly one offered answer fits both the grammar and the stated context. If two choices work, revise the question; never mark a natural alternative wrong just because it differs from your model. Vary the correct letter.

Accept a choice letter or the quoted option. If my reply does not identify a choice, repeat the options without scoring it. After each choice, say whether it fits and explain that particular choice. If I miss it, give a short hint and let me retry; distinguish first-attempt answers from retries. Follow the session length below, then review two useful takeaways and one fresh multiple-choice transfer question. Do not convert this practice into a level certificate.

SESSION
Use the supplied grammar focus and qualifications. Explain the central distinction in no more than 70 words. Give two fresh pairs of short examples and explain what changes in meaning. Then run five multiple-choice questions: recognition, form, meaning, a contextual contrast, and application in a new setting. Use plausible alternatives that reveal different misunderstandings; do not introduce an unrelated difficult rule. Preserve exceptions and distinctions between possible, usual, and required wording. Start with the explanation, example pairs, and question 1 only.
